

A CHANCE FOR TEACHERS TO GET THEIR WORK PUBLISHED!

Are you a busy teacher who barely finds time to read the day's newspaper? Do you wonder how you can be expected to keep yourself up to date on current research in the field of education, when you are so overwhelmed with numerous duties and pressing deadlines? As for writing: forget it!

If that is how you feel, we fully understand.

But which teacher is not hungry for new ideas? New tricks in her kitty?

Those of you who have been reading TEACHER PLUS's regular column, RESEARCH IN ACTION, may have discovered that it has been designed exactly for people like you. By selecting a different research paper each month, and distilling its essence, the column aims not only to bring important research findings into your field of knowledge, it also suggests ways for you to apply those findings in your classroom.

Now here's an idea: would you like to select from any of the Research in Action pieces (<https://thinkingteacher.in/category/research-in-action/>) and choose one which has suggestions that you can actually implement in your classroom?

As you try out these suggestions, record your responses to the questions asked in that box, and send us your groundbreaking research!

We will compile these into a book that carries the selected piece followed by the description of your practice: as an exemplar for other teachers to follow!

Think of it: you will get your work published even as you inspire another teacher somewhere else to follow suit!

Come on, flip through the numerous instalments of RESEARCH IN ACTION!

You will surely find more than one which resonates with your unique needs.

Send your findings in to thinkingteacher22@gmail.com

Last date for receipt of your submissions (you can send in more than one): 31st March 2021
